

Wellness doesn't look the same for every traveler, but almost everyone starts thinking about a fresh start when January rolls around. Whether you're dreaming of a boot-camp-style fitness retreat or something much softer, the best wellness getaways for 2026 are about intentional renewal—be it a restorative escape to the countryside, a medical wellness program, or a spiritual retreat in the desert. From hydrotherapy circuits in Miami to Ayurvedic healing in the Caribbean, we've mapped out experiences that will leave you feeling restored, not depleted.

Henley's Take: Fora's 2026 Hot List

I'd never actually spent time in Mexico City until a couple years ago. Now, it's where I'd head first for a best meal—I had life-changing oysters at La Docena (you can order off-menu and get real respect, IYKYK) and a multi-hour dinner at Sarde that cost less than a night out at a mediocre spot in Tribeca. And unlike other culinary capitals, reservations in CDMX are still attainable.

But the one thing Mexico City lacked was great hotel options, and that is shifting, fast. We're seeing grand dames renovated, bougie boutique gems proliferating, luxury and lifestyle brands planting their flags. Is it the arrival of the World Cup? The rising profile of the art scene? I think the rest of the hospitality world is like me—we knew this city was special, but we'd been busy. And now that we've discovered it, we can't get it out of our minds. Or our stomachs.

Read more about why we love CDMX in our 2026 Hot List—plus nine other destinations and travel trends we can't get enough of right now.
